Honorary Degree Recipient

Ismail Serageldin

Ismail Serageldin, vice president for environmentally and socially sustainable development for the World Bank, has gained international recognition for his work in economic development, environmental protection, and poverty reduction. He has worked to increase cooperation between nations, helped to focus the world's attention on the plight of developing countries, and is an important voice for humanism, the poor, women, and the environment.

One of the World Bank's senior managers, Dr. Serageldin is also currently chairman of the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR), chairman of the Consultative Group to Assist the Poorest (CGAP), and chairman of the Global Water Partnership. Educated at Cairo University, where he received his B.Sc. degree, and Harvard University, which awarded his master's and Ph.D., he joined the World Bank in 1972.

At the World Bank, he has designed and managed a range of poverty-focused projects in developing countries. Dr. Serageldin is a frequent lecturer at universities, a participant in major international forums, and is a respected author and prolific writer. He has published more than thirty-five books and monographs, and over 200 articles and book chapters on a wide range of topics, including the global environment, water resources, women's issues, urbanism, art, architecture, and culture.

A friend of American University, Dr. Serageldin has served on the Board of Advisors for the Center for the Global South since its founding in 1992. He has taught in the Center's summer institute and has helped to shape its programs that examine issues affecting developing nations, such as global inequality, the environment, human rights, urbanization, and hunger. We welcome this opportunity to award him the Doctor of International Affairs, honoris causa.

The Tradition of Commencement at American University

American University awarded its first degrees (two doctorates and one master's) at a commencement ceremony held in the university's amphitheater in 1916. Over the years commencements have grown and changed as the university has become larger and more diverse. Today the university marks its 106th commencement, the twenty-third held in the winter to honor the previous year's summer and fall degree candidates. More than 400 students from the diverse disciplines of the arts and sciences, communication, law, business, public affairs, and international service will participate in today's ceremony.

Today Ismail Serageldin joins a distinguished list of university honorary degree recipients including U.S. Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, and William J. Clinton, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Congresswoman Barbara C. Jordan, editor and publisher Norman Cousins, astronomer Carl Sagan, symphony conductor Mstislav Rostropovich, statesman Alexander Dubcek, ambassador Robert Strauss, author Alex Haley, television journalist Ted Koppel, historian Henry Steele Commager, businessman J. Willard Marriott and economist John Kenneth Galbraith, to name a few.

We take pride in this long and distinguished tradition of commencement as we celebrate the achievements of today's graduating class.

Academic Regalia

The history of academic dress dates to medieval European universities of the fourteenth century. Universities originally used the same clerical robe and hood as the religious orders which established them. When universities achieved identity as educational institutions rather than extensions of religious orders, the design and the symbolism of their regalia began to change. Universities in Europe and areas culturally tied to Europe developed colorful gowns and caps and the hood became a designator of degrees earned instead of a piece of headgear.

Many American institutions have adopted caps and gowns incorporating their official colors. American University's distinctive red, white and blue regalia was introduced in 1988. All undergraduates wear the mortarboard cap with a silver tassel that is traditionally shifted from left to right at the end of the commencement ceremony. Undergraduate students who are projected to graduate with Latin honors and/or University honors wear gold hoods.

Graduate students wear a blue hood lined in red and white with velvet trim to signify their degree or academic field. All master of arts students wear a white-edged hood, except for those in education (light blue) and international service (peacock blue). Gold velvet trim denotes master of science degrees. Other degrees with specific hood trim colors include the Master of Business Administration (drab), Master of Fine Arts (brown) and Master of Public Administration (also peacock blue). Juris Doctor students wear hoods edged with purple, as do those receiving the Master of Laws, who also wear a tam cap in place of the mortarboard.

American University doctoral degree candidates wear the tam with a silver tassel and carry their degree hoods in the processional. They are then "hooded" by their faculty adviser during the commencement ceremony. Members of the faculty generally wear the regalia to which they are entitled by virtue of the degrees they hold. The regalia may denote their alma mater and the field of study in which the highest degree was earned.

Although some universities use different systems, the academic field is usually identified in accord with a standard code of colors used as part of the decoration of doctor's gowns or tassels on caps as well as hood trim. In addition to fields listed above, these include: economics (copper), journalism (crimson), library science (lemon yellow), music (pink), philosophy (dark blue), science (golden yellow) and theology (scarlet).

Graduating Students and Degree Candidates

Students who earned degrees in August 1997 and those who are candidates for degrees for December 1997 are listed respectively on the following pages. December 1997 degrees and honors designations are subject to final certification by the University and should not be considered official at the time of this publication.
