Honorary Degree Recipient

Alfred Kazin

The illustrious career of Brooklyn-born author and literary critic Alfred Kazin spans more than fifty years. He came to national prominence in 1942 with the publication of his first book, On Native Grounds, when he was just 27 years old. Since then he has published three autobiographical works, several collections of critical essays, edited numerous volumes, been a literary editor of the New Republic, and a book critic for various well-known publications. He has also devoted many years to higher education, holding a number of prestigious professorships at universities in the United States, and has been in high demand as a visiting scholar and lecturer at educational institutions throughout the world. At age eighty, Mr. Kazin remains a vital member of the literary world through his writing and lecturing.

His extraordinary talent has been to synthesize on the written page his academic knowledge with his personal experience of growing up poor and Jewish during the Great Depression. Born to Eastern European immigrants who spoke little English, Mr. Kazin pursued his passionate interest in literature at City College and Columbia University, where he earned a Master's degree. His life's work has enlightened the world about both contemporary literature and the American experience.

We of The American University feel a special sense of identity with this American scholar, teacher, and man of letters. Today we are proud to welcome Alfred Kazin officially into The American University family with the degree Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

President's Award Recipient

Matthew S. Klinger

President Ladner has inaugurated this year a new recognition for excellence —The President's Award—presented to the graduating senior who best exemplifies the American University experience. The President has selected Matthew Scott Klinger of the School of International Service to receive the award for 1995.

During his undergraduate career, Matthew has demonstrated the attributes the University strives to foster: academic achievement and intellectual curiosity; integrity and selflessness in citizenship; leadership and service to the community; and building community through promoting the understanding and acceptance of cultural and racial diversity.

Matthew is graduating magna cum laude with University Honors. He has been on the Dean's List every term, is a member of the SIS honor society, and has been inducted into the University's chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. In addition to his scholarly achievements, Matthew has been a leader in student government, having served as president of the SIS Undergraduate Cabinet in his junior year. He is a Resident Assistant in Anderson Hall and a member of the student judiciary and disciplinary council. In recognition of his contributions to the campus, he also is this year's winner of the Student Award for Outstanding Service, presented yesterday at the University Honors Convocation.

Matthew is also an outstanding athlete. He turned down offers to play professionally with the Chicago White Sox, choosing instead to pursue his education and to play on and coach intramural teams in four sports. He has also made the time to be head coach of a boys basketball team at a junior high school in the District of Columbia.

Following graduation, Matthew will begin a graduate program in European Studies at the University of Bradford as a British Marshall Scholar. He is The American University's first recipient of this prestigious academic award, and one of only forty scholars chosen by the British government to study for advanced degrees in the United Kingdom.

The Tradition of Commencement at The American University

The American University awarded its first degrees (two doctorates and one master's) at a commencement ceremony held in the university's amphitheater in 1916. Over the years, commencements have grown and changed as the university has grown larger and more diverse. Today, the university marks its 101st commencement. More than 1600 students from the diverse disciplines of the arts and sciences, law, business, public affairs, international service, and communication will participate in commencement ceremonies this spring.

We are delighted that Alfred Kazin is participating with us as an honorary degree recipient today. He joins a distinguished list of university honorees, including U.S. Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, and William J. Clinton, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Congresswoman Barbara C. Jordan, distinguished editor and publisher Norman Cousins, astronomer Carl Sagan, symphony conductor Mstislav Rostropovich, statesman Alexander Dubchek, ambassador Robert Strauss, author Alex Haley, television journalist Ted Koppel, historian Henry Steele Commager, businessman J. Willard Marriott and economist John Kenneth Galbraith, to name a few.

We take pride in this long and distinguished tradition of commencement as we celebrate the achievements of today's graduating class.

Academic Regalia

The history of academic dress dates to medieval European universities of the fourteenth century. Originally, universities used the same costumes as religious orders, which established most early universities. These costumes consisted of the customary clerical robe and hood, worn for utilitarian purposes.

When universities achieved identity as educational institutions rather than extensions of religious orders, the design and the symbolism of their regalia began to change. Universities in Europe (and in overseas areas culturally tied to Europe) developed colorful gowns and caps, and the hood became a designator of degrees instead of a piece of headgear.

During the past two decades an increasing number of American institutions have adopted gowns and caps that incorporate their official colors. This change began decades ago when Harvard University introduced its crimson doctoral gown. That dramatic new gown prompted other institutions to try to match its resplendence. The American University's distinctive red, white, and blue regalia was introduced at the university's eighty-seventh commencement in the spring of 1988.

Participants in academic ceremonies normally wear the academic regalia to which they are entitled by virtue of the degrees they hold. The field of study in which a degree was earned is identified in accord with a standard code of colors. Although different universities use different systems, often the colors below are used as the edging of hoods for all degrees, and they may be used as part of the decoration of doctor's gowns and sometimes for tassels on caps:

Arts, Letters, Humanities	White
Commerce, Accountancy, Business	Drab
Economics	Copper
Education	Light Blue
Fine Arts	Brown
Journalism	Crimson
Law	Purple
Library Science	Lemon
Music	Pink
Nursing	Apricot
Philosophy	Dark Blue
Physical Education	Sage Green
Public Administration (including Foreign Service)	Peacock Blue
Public Health	Salmon Pink
Science	Golden Yellow
Social Work	Citron
